We have a course manager who does not seem to realise his job is to make the course fit to play. It is essential for the finances that the course is open and members are using the facilities and spending money. Perhaps he should spend more time attending to the course &amp; less time chopping down trees that expose the car park and have no impact on the course it's self. 2 Directors or members of the captains committee have the authority to re-open the course is it not about time the directors started directing". Derrick Jones "For at least 35 years the course has been available for play except under the most extreme weather conditions. Although the weather has been bad in various ways we seem to have a course manager who does not seem to realise his job is to get maximum playing time from the course even if not fully open.
